COMMITTEE STATEMENT AND VIEWS

PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

The purpose of H.R. 1211, the FOIA Oversight and Implementation Act of 2013, is to strengthen the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) to increase transparency and accountability in government. It amends FOIA to provide for more proactive disclosure of records, encourages enhanced agency compliance, and improves the FOIA process for both agencies and requesters.

H.R. 1211 increases the amount of agency information made available through proactive disclosure. Records requested under FOIA more than three times will be posted online for public inspection and copying. Each agency shall also review its records to determine whether any records ought to be released because they are in the public interest, and establish procedures for identifying categories of records that can be proactively disclosed to the public on a regular basis. These provisions will increase the amount of information the public can access without even filing a FOIA request.

H.R. 1211 establishes a single website, accessible to the public at no cost, which will allow people to submit FOIA requests, file appeals, and receive automated information about the status of their requests in a single location.

H.R. 1211 establishes a presumption of openness for agencies processing FOIA requests. Attorney General Eric Holder’s March 2009 Memorandum to agencies directed them to disclose information whenever possible, and to not withhold information simply because it can be legally withheld under a FOIA exemption. H.R. 1211 would codify the presumption of openness, making it a permanent requirement for agencies.

H.R. 1211 strengthens the role of the Office of Government Information Services (OGIS), an entity created by the OPEN Government Act of 2007. OGIS acts as a FOIA ombudsman for agencies and requesters, and is also tasked with alternate dispute resolution to resolve FOIA cases. H.R. 1211 provides OGIS with direct reporting to Congress, without the need for interagency review. OGIS would also be tasked with increased review of compliance with FOIA, including the timely processing of requests, fees and fee waivers, and the use of exemptions. OGIS will submit an annual report to Congress on its review. It will also hold at least one public meeting per year to allow interested persons to appear and present oral or written statements.

H.R. 1211 clarifies the right of any individual to appeal an agency's determination regarding a FOIA request filed by that individual. The agency must give requesters at least 90 days to appeal an adverse determination. A time limit for appeals is not currently codified, so this provision will strengthen requester rights to file appeals.

H.R. 1211 increases the amount of information reported by agencies in annual FOIA reports. The bill requires each agency to report how often it invoked law enforcement exclusions, how often it engaged in dispute resolution, how often it made information available to the public through proactive disclosure, and how often it assessed a search or duplication fee for a request when the agency did not comply with the statutory time limits for responding to that request. The reports would be sent to OGIS, as well as the Attorney General. Additionally, the raw data used by agencies to complete their annual FOIA reports will be made available online in a fully useable, bulk-downloadable and machine-readable format.

The bill requires the Government Accountability Office (GAO) to conduct audits of agency compliance with FOIA. It will also catalog the number of exemptions under subsection (b)(3) of FOIA. GAO will also review and report on agency processing of FOIA requests seeking information about private entities that receive or received assistance under the Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008 during any period in which the government owned or owns more than 50 percent of the stock of such entity.

H.R. 1211 increases the oversight responsibilities of agency Chief FOIA Officers, requiring each agency Chief FOIA Officer to annually review all aspects of FOIA compliance by the agency. The bill also establishes a Chief FOIA Officers Council, which shall be chaired by the Director of the Office of Information Policy at the Department of Justice, and the Director of OGIS. The Council is tasked with: developing recommendations to increase FOIA compliance and efficiency; sharing information on ideas, best practices, and innovative approaches to improve FOIA; identifying ways to better coordinate initiatives to increase transparency; and promoting the development and use of performance measures for agency FOIA compliance. The Council shall meet regularly, and will hold annual meetings that are open to the public at which interested persons are allowed to present oral and written statements. All Council records, except any records relating to national security, shall be made publicly available.

Agencies must update their FOIA regulations no later than 180 days after H.R. 1211 is enacted. Regulations must include procedures for engaging in dispute resolution and procedures for engaging with OGIS. The regulations shall be reviewed by OGIS to ensure they are compliant and consistent with current FOIA law. Any agency that fails to comply will have to submit a report to Congress to explain its noncompliance. Agencies that do not comply will also be reviewed by their Office of Inspector General to evaluate agency compliance with FOIA law.

H.R. 1211 creates a pilot program to evaluate the use of a centralized FOIA portal to receive, process, and publicly disseminate records in response to FOIA requests. The portal must allow people to submit FOIA requests to any participating agency in one location, and to track the processing of their requests. All records produced in response to requests are to be placed automatically online and be made available to the requester and the general public. The pilot requires three new agencies to participate in the FOIA portal, and to use it to track and process requests and post responsive records online. The pilot will last for three years. At the end of the pilot, the Office of Management and Budget will review the benefits of the FOIA portal, including cost and resource savings; increased efficiency, transparency, and accountability; and ability to complete annual FOIA reports. It will also assess any change in the amount of FOIA requests received. Each agency shall report to Congress on its experience using the FOIA portal and any related recommendations the agency considers appropriate.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

FOIA was enacted in 1966, after eleven years of legislative development in the House of Representatives and almost six years of consideration in the Senate.¹ At the time of enactment, FOIA was the third freedom of information law in the world, and by far the most comprehensive.² It established an important precedent by giving the public a formal method to request and receive information from the government.

FOIA establishes a presumption that records in the possession of Executive Branch agencies and departments of the U.S. Federal Government are accessible to the people. This presumption was not always the approach to federal information access policy. Before FOIA, those seeking information were required to show a need for information. FOIA replaced the “need to know” standard with a “right to know.” As a result, FOIA is often referred to as the embodiment of “the people’s right to know” about the activities and operations of government.

Under FOIA, anyone may file a request for a copy of any existing record at any federal agency for any reason. Information requested under FOIA is required to be released unless it falls under any of nine narrow exemptions to protect certain information from disclosure. Dispute over requests for information under FOIA may be appealed administratively, resolved through mediation, or litigated in court.³

Since its enactment, FOIA has been amended multiple times in efforts to increase agency compliance with the requirements of the act and improve the process. FOIA was amended in 1974, 1976, 1986, 1996, 2007, and 2010. Despite these amendments, significant problems persist. H.R. 1211 helps to address many of these issues.

One issue is the use of the nine statutory FOIA exemptions, which allow for the withholding of records to protect sensitive information from disclosure. There is concern that agencies are over-using exemptions to protect records that should be releasable under law. In March 2009, Attorney General Eric Holder issued guidance stating that “an agency should not withhold information simply because it may do so legally,” and established a presumption of disclosure.⁴ Many agencies have failed to adopt this practice fully, and withhold information that could be released.

Fees and fee waivers are another problem that requires further legislation. FOIA does not allow agencies to assess search fees if the agency does not comply with specific statutory time limits to respond to requesters. Additionally, many requesters qualify for a waiver of fees. Agencies have not fully complied with the statute. Some agencies charge excessive fees, or engage in fee assessment practices designed to dissuade requesters.⁵

The backlog of FOIA requests has increased in recent years, and has led to significant delays in the processing of requests. The number of FOIA requests rose from 597,415 in Fiscal Year 2010 to 644,165 in Fiscal Year 2011, a 7.8 percent increase.⁶ During that same time frame, backlogs increased 20.8 percent. From FY 2010 to FY 2011, the total backlog of FOIA requests increased from 69,526 to 83,490.⁷ Agencies have made efforts to reduce FOIA backlogs, but they continue to be a consistent problem.

Many agencies are failing to comply with FOIA requirements to make frequently requested records publicly available online. The Department of Justice issued guidance instructing agencies to release records that have been requested three or more times.⁸ The proactive disclosure of records in the public interest has been limited though. Proactive disclosure could reduce the number of FOIA requests, requiring less processing time for agencies.

FOIA law encourages the use of alternate dispute resolution to avoid lawsuits whenever possible. Each agency has a FOIA Public Liaison, who is tasked with assisting “in the resolution of any disputes between the requester and the agency.”⁹ The Office of Government Information Services was also created to offer mediation services and work to resolve disputes. Despite these actions, the number of FOIA lawsuits continues to rise.¹⁰

SECTION-BY-SECTION

Section 1. Short title

This section is the short title of the bill, “FOIA Oversight and Implementation Act of 2013,” or the “FOIA Act.”

Section 2. Freedom of Information Act Amendments

This section amends FOIA by—

(1) Increasing electronic accessibility by requiring agencies to post more information online in publicly accessible formats. Agencies will post information requested three or more times online in a publicly accessible format, as well as other records that would contribute to public interest. Annual reports and the raw data of the reports will also be publicly accessible without request, and there will be a single website for the public to submit FOIA requests and receive information about the status of requests.

(2) Putting into statute President Obama’s and Attorney General Holder’s memorandums requiring agencies to adopt a presumption of openness when responding to requests. Under the Act, agencies may only withhold information if the disclosure of such records could cause foreseeable harm. It places the burden on agencies to demonstrate why information may be withheld, instead of on the public to justify release. The FOIA Act also puts into statute the President’s recommendation to utilize technology to increase transparency and evaluate records to determine whether they should be publicly available.

(3) Strengthening the Office of Government Information Services (OGIS) by giving it increased independence. OGIS shall report directly to Congress without interagency review. It will review agency compliance with all aspects of FOIA, and report recommendations. OGIS will also hold public meetings at least once a year.

(4) Requiring agencies to report more information in annual reports. Agencies would for the first time have to report the number of times they invoked law enforcement exclusions, engaged in dispute resolution, and the number of records made publicly available. Annual reports would be completed by March 1 of each year instead of April 1.

(5) Requiring the Government Accountability Office to catalog all uses of (b)(3) exemptions, which are FOIA exemptions created by other statutes. Currently, it is unknown how many (b)(3) exemptions exist.

(6) Increasing responsibilities for OGIS, DOJ, and Chief FOIA Officers to review FOIA compliance and make recommendations. DOJ will have to report more information about FOIA lawsuits.

OGIS and Chief FOIA Officers will both review FOIA compliance and make recommendations to improve the process.

(7) Creating a Chief FOIA Officers Council, based on the CIO Council. It shall be run jointly by OGIS and DOJ's Office of Information Policy as co-chairs. All agency Chief FOIA Officers shall be members of the Council. The Council will meet regularly to review FOIA compliance and discuss improvements. Records of the meetings shall be publicly available, and all meetings shall be noticed in the Federal Register beforehand. No less than once a year, the Council shall have a public meeting where interested persons may submit statements in writing or in person.

(8) Requiring each agency to update its FOIA regulations within 180 days of enactment. The regulations shall include procedures on dispute resolution and working with OGIS. OGIS will review whether agencies comply with this, and if agencies fail to update their regulations they will have to report to Congress on their failure to do so and will be subject to a review of their FOIA compliance by their Office of Inspector General.

Section 3. Pilot program

The section establishes a pilot program to review FOIAonline, the public portal that allows requesters to submit and review requests for multiple agencies at a single location. The pilot program will last for three years and will require three additional agencies to use FOIAonline to process FOIA requests and make records available online. At the end of the pilot, agencies are to report to Congress on the results of the program and make recommendations as to whether it will continue to use FOIAonline.

Section 4. Inspector General review; Adverse actions

This section requires the Inspector General of each agency to periodically review agency compliance with the requirements of FOIA, including timely processing of requests, assessments of fees and fee waivers, and the use of exemptions, and to make any necessary recommendations to the agency head to improve the process. Recommendations may include disciplinary action. Additionally, the amendment would make the withholding of information in a manner inconsistent with FOIA a basis for disciplinary action.

EXPLANATION OF AMENDMENTS

Amendment offered by Ms. Duckworth

Ms. Duckworth's amendment requires agencies to report the number of times they assessed a search or duplication fee for a FOIA request when the agency failed to comply with FOIA request response deadlines. This information would be included in agencies' annual FOIA reports. The amendment would also require agencies to notify a requester if the requester was assessed search or duplication fees after the agency failed to comply with time limits under FOIA, and inform the requester of the circumstances that would justify the fees. If an agency fails to inform the requester, it may not collect fees.

Amendment offered by Mr. Mica

Mr. Mica's amendment added a section to the end of the bill that tasks the Inspector General of each agency with periodically reviewing agency compliance with the requirements of FOIA and making any necessary recommendations to the agency head to improve the process—recommendations may include disciplinary action. Additionally, the amendment would make the withholding of information in a manner inconsistent with FOIA a basis for disciplinary action.

Amendment offered by Mr. Turner

Mr. Turner's amendment requires the Government Accountability Office to report on agencies' processing of FOIA requests seeking information about entities that are owned or have been owned by the government. Specifically, the report would review requests for information on entities that have received assistance under title I of the Emergency Economic Stabilization Act of 2008 (12 U.S.C. 5211 et seq.) during any period the Government owned more than 50 percent of the stock of the entity. This would cover Government sponsored enterprises and would shed light on FOIA policy pertaining to these entities.

COMMITTEE CONSIDERATION

On March 20, 2013, the Committee met in open session and ordered reported favorably the bill, H.R. 1211, as amended, by voice vote, a quorum being present.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO THE LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

Section 102(b)(3) of Public Law 104–1 requires a description of the application of this bill to the legislative branch where the bill relates to the terms and conditions of employment or access to public services and accommodations. This bill provides for more proactive disclosure of records, encourages enhanced agency compliance, and improves the FOIA process for both agencies and requesters. Legislative branch employees and their families, to the extent that they are otherwise eligible for the benefits provided by this legislation, have equal access to its benefits.

STATEMENT OF OVERSIGHT FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE COMMITTEE

In compliance with clause 3(c)(1) of rule XIII and clause 2(b)(1) of rule X of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee's oversight findings and recommendations are reflected in the descriptive portions of this report.

STATEMENT OF GENERAL PERFORMANCE GOALS AND OBJECTIVES

In accordance with clause 3(c)(4) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee's performance goals and objectives are reflected in the descriptive portions of this report.

DUPLICATION OF FEDERAL PROGRAMS

No provision of H.R. 1211 establishes or reauthorizes a program of the Federal Government known to be duplicative of another Federal program, a program that was included in any report from the Government Accountability Office to Congress pursuant to section 21 of Public Law 111–139, or a program related to a program identified in the most recent Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance.

DISCLOSURE OF DIRECTED RULE MAKINGS

The FOIA Oversight and Implementation Act will require agencies to promulgate new regulations on procedures for processing requests under FOIA. Agencies are already required to have regulations on FOIA, but this Act will ensure these regulations are current. Agencies will specifically have to create new regulations on interactions with the Office of Government Information Services, and procedures used for dispute resolution services.

FEDERAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE ACT

The Committee finds that the legislation does not establish or authorize the establishment of an advisory committee within the definition of 5 U.S.C. App., Section 5(b).

UNFUNDED MANDATE STATEMENT

Section 423 of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act (as amended by Section 101(a)(2) of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act, P.L. 104–4) requires a statement as to whether the provisions of the reported include unfunded mandates. In compliance with this requirement the Committee has received a letter from the Congressional Budget Office included herein.

EARMARK IDENTIFICATION

H.R. 1211 does not include any congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits as defined in clause 9 of rule XXI.

COMMITTEE ESTIMATE

Clause 3(d)(2) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives requires an estimate and a comparison by the Committee of the costs that would be incurred in carrying out H.R. 1211. However, clause 3(d)(3)(B) of that rule provides that this requirement does not apply when the Committee has included in its report a timely submitted cost estimate of the bill prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office under section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act.

BUDGET AUTHORITY AND CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE

With respect to the requirements of clause 3(c)(2) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives and section 308(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 and with respect to requirements of clause 3(c)(3) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives and section 402 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the Committee has received the following cost estimate for H.R. 1211 from the Director of Congressional Budget Office:

MAY 21, 2013.

Chairman, Committee on Oversight and Government Reform,
House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for H.R. 1211, the FOIA Act.

Enclosure.

H.R. 1211—FOIA Act

Summary: H.R. 1211 would amend the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). FOIA generally allows any person to obtain federal agency records. Specifically, the legislation would require the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) to establish a single FOIA website for making requests and checking on the status of those requests; establish a Chief FOIA Officers Council to review compliance with the act and to recommend improvements; and require additional reports from the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) and other agencies.

CBO estimates that implementing H.R. 1211 would cost $20 million over the 2014–2018 period, assuming appropriation of the necessary amounts. The legislation also could affect direct spending by agencies not funded through annual appropriations (such as the Tennessee Valley Authority). Therefore, pay-as-you-go procedures apply. CBO estimates, however, that any net increase in spending by those agencies would not be significant. Enacting the bill would not affect revenues.

H.R. 1211 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA) and would not affect the budgets of state, local, or tribal governments.

Estimated cost to the Federal Government: The estimated budgetary impact of H.R. 1211 is shown in the following table. The costs of this legislation fall within all budget functions that contain salaries and expenses.

	By fiscal year, in millions of dollars—
	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2014–2018
CHANGES IN SPENDING SUBJECT TO APPROPRIATION
Estimated Authorization Level	5	5	4	4	4	22
Estimated Outlays	4	4	4	4	4	20

Basis of the estimate: For this estimate, CBO assumes that the bill will be enacted by the end of fiscal year 2013, that the necessary amounts will be appropriated for each year, and that spending will follow historical patterns for FOIA activities.

Enacted in 1966, FOIA was designed to enable anyone to request, without explanation or justification, copies of existing, identifiable, and unpublished records from the executive branch. OMB issues guidelines to agencies on fees to charge for providing re-requested information, while DOJ oversees agency compliance with FOIA. In 2012, federal agencies (excluding the Social Security Administration) received more than 650,000 FOIA requests. In addition, DOJ reports that in fiscal year 2012, agencies employed about 4,400 full-time staff to fulfill FOIA requests and spent around $485 million on FOIA-related activities.

CBO expects that OMB would expand the use of existing websites that are currently used to fulfill FOIA requests. A governmentwide website (FOIA.gov) is operated by the Department of Justice, and FOIAonline.gov is a Web application operated by the Environmental Protection Agency that allows the public to track and search some FOIA requests. Nonetheless, CBO anticipates that the workloads of most agencies would increase to carry out the bill's new reporting requirements. We also estimate that NARA would face additional costs to arrange for a new annual meeting and to establish a Chief FOIA Officers Council to review and improve the FOIA process. Based on the costs of similar electronic filing systems and websites and a review of the annual reports by 15 major agencies over the last five years, CBO estimates that implementing H.R. 1211 would add about 1 percent—around $5 million annually—to the governmentwide costs of administering FOIA.

Pay-As-You-Go considerations: The Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010 establishes budget-reporting and enforcement procedures for legislation affecting direct spending or revenues. Enacting H.R. 1211 could affect net direct spending for agencies not funded through the appropriations process, but CBO estimates that such effects would not be significant in any year.

Intergovernmental and private-sector impact: H.R. 1211 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in UMRA and would not affect the budgets of state, local, or tribal governments.

Estimate prepared by: Federal costs: Matthew Pickford; Impact on state, local, and tribal governments: Elizabeth Cove Delisle; Impact on private sector: Paige Piper/Bach.

Estimate approved by: Theresa Gullo, Deputy Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.

CHANGES IN EXISTING LAW MADE BY THE BILL, AS REPORTED

However, in each case the justification for the deletion shall be explained fully in writing, and the extent of such deletion shall be indicated on the portion of the record which is made available or published, unless including that indication would harm an interest protected by the exemption in subsection (b) under which the deletion is made.
